REPUBLICAN AVALANCHE. MAINE-ALL HAIL!

The telegraph reports that the gallant Republicans of Maine have elected their State Ticket by over ten thousand majority, thirty of the thirty-two Senators, and threefourths of the Representatives! This is rather the cleanest sweep that the Republicans of Maine have yet made, and sets a cap ital example for the Republicans of Wisconsin to follow. Will they not resolve to do it?

The New York Democracy.

The telegraph brings us a sketch of the at the same place a few days ago. The contest between the Douglas and Buchanan factions culminated in a regular melee, and in the course of the fight the chairman was knocked headlong off the platform. The Hards finally getting the upper hand, the Softs were compelled to withdraw leaving the Convention entirely in the hands of the vic-

The National Fair.

Our correspondence from the National Fair Grounds will be read with much interest .-The exhibition is one of the most attractive ever offered and it has proved a complete success. Up to the time of closing the books, Tuesday, over 30,000 entries had been made. Receipts for the first two days were nearly the grounds. Flora Temple and Princess have arrived there and the trotting match comes off to-day. The weather so far has been extremely propitious for the Fair, and will probably continue so during the week.

The Grain Trade.

The produce trade continues brisk. Re ceipts of wheat vesterday, including flour, amounted to 50,260 bushels, (46,280 bus. wheat, 798 bbls flour) and shipments to 48,-010 bushels, (42,620 bus. wheat 1,068 bbls flour.) The market opened buoyantly with and New York markets declining, a reaction took place in the afternoon, and at the close prices had a strong downward tendency .--About 1,500 bbls of Spring Extra flour changed bands at the wide range of $3.37 1-2 brands heavy.

How they Magnify Things at Chicago. - Ceicago is truly a great place, but those who form their opinions of it upon the statements of its presses, unless they make allowance of at least one hundred per cent. for exaggeration, will be very far from having a correct dea of it. A good illustration of how the Chicago papers magnify things is the statement published in the Press & Tribune, the other day, that each of their elevators were capable of receiving 225,000 bushels of grain per day. Messis. Sturcis & Co., being more conscientious than the Press & Tribune, rebuke that paper severely for publishing this "untruth," and add:

The most we ever did recive at our was 255 cars—say 90,000 bushels. We could handle 100,000; but that would be about as much as we would like to undertake.

The National Fair at Chicago. From our Special Reporter.

CHICAGO, Tuesday, Sept. 13. The seventh exhibition of the United States Agricultural Society was opened formaily to-day by appropriate ceremonies. I the morning, and was agreeably surprised at the really imposing show which the different pavillions make. There are a great number of these buildings on the ground, appropriated, as conspicuous signs denote, to the various departments of Agriculture, Mechanics, Horticulture, and Manufactures. One called the "reporter's building," is about eighty feet deep, with temporary desks and other accommodations running quite round the room. Another, planted right in the centre of the grounds, wears an immense sign, with "BEST's lager saloon" thereon. Cottage Grove, the location of the Fair, is just beyond the city limits; is a desirable spot in every respect, and is reached by the horse and steam cars. Very early this morning the Hegira commenced, and as I write now, (5 o'clock), the cars and 'busses go in a continnal stream, loaded almost to suffocation with passengers. 1 went carefully over the grounds this morning and found the entries in each department incomplete, but goods and stock the Fair at Chicago, to think about our Fair. ters were driving the last handful of nails into the Speaker's stand.

There are some very fine specimens of Durhams noticable, among which is J. D. SMITH'S 17 head, and James F. Brown's herd from Berlin. The "Horse department" looks well; per Ross & Co., of Chicago, exhibit a Camel's hair shawl with the price attached, $1,000, and surrounding it is a good quantity of Valenciennes lace of exquisite pattern and only $100 per yard. I believe this is the only case of dry goods on exhibition-it was this morning. The building is well stocked with photographic skill, examples of penmanship, oil paintings of little merit, specimens of graining, cases of false teeth, (the best of State Convention yesterday. Although worthy of imitation in this respect, in some others she is not; for instance, her horse railroads, which I conceive to be very badly completed. Instead of using the ground rail, common in New York and Phildelphia, the cars ran on the oldest fashioned and narrowest slip of bar iron-I said "run on"-I should have said "run off." I think I got out of the street car three times before I reached Cottage Grove, to help all hands and the driver lift the vehicle back where it belonged.

The Hotels are all full, as you may suppose. A place to "horizontalize" upon is only obtainable by consenting to bunk with 15,155 those popular but sometimes unknown characters Tox, Dick and Harry. If he will refer to our files, our correspondent will discover that the Sentinel has earnestly and repeatedly called the attention of our citizens to the approaching State Fair, and urged them, one and all, o make suitable preparations to ensure its complete success. It is, we presume, the business of the officers of our State Agricultural Society to prepare and publish, in due season, a full notice of the time and place of holding the Fair, the programme for each day, and some account of the attractions that are expected. This, no doubt, will be done; but it should be done without any further delay. Meantime, it is sufficient to say that the exhibition promises to be the largest and finest ever seen in our State, and that the attendance will be more numerous than at any previous occasion. Judge Black's Article in the Constitution.

Black, when briefly expressed, amounts to this:—That inasmuch as the Constitution permits shavery in the Territories, the com-mon law affords a sufficient protection for it, and therefore that its existence is secure until the people at the time of forming a State Constitution, acquire a right to ex clude it.

But this doctrine is contrary to the experience of every slaveholding community, for they all possess and absolutely require a variety of statutes for the protection of slave property; even the history of Kansas affords a proof of this, for one of the first acts of the legislature, when it was under the pro-slavey party, was to pass a series of laws for the rotection of the slave trade. Now since the Free State party has become by our history since the passage of the Kan-sas-Nebraska et, clearly indicates not only that the interpretation put upon it by its distinguished author, is not the correct one, but that the people of our territories are car-rying it out precisely as he contemplated, and making territories free or slaveholding accormaking territories free or slaveholding according to their own good will and pleasure.

No close observer of events can doubt that a similar privilege will be exercised by the people of our territories in future, and that, too, without waiting for the moment when State Constitutions are adopted. The people of the territories will be acting as their interests seem to require, and those who clamor for Congressional codes or Wilmot Provisos, will find themselves served like the lawyer, who, while arguing a notion for a new trial for a rogue who had been convicted of larceny, accidentally discovered that his client was at that very moment being whipped in was at that very moment being whipped in the jail yard, as punishment for the offence.

Notwithstanding the violence which at all times disgraced the history of Kansas and the great miseries which have Kansas and the great miseries which have been inflicted upon her people from a pseu-liar combination of causes, which in all hu-man probability will never operate upon an-other territory, the great fact remains that the people of Kansas during the centinuance of her territorial condition have virtually de-sided that she should be a non-slaveholding sided that she should be a non-slaveholding political community.

The people of Nebraska have done the same thing. The people of New Maxico have chosen to declare, by the action of their territorial legislature, that local laws for the protection of slave property should exist among them, and if a pro-slavery sentiment continues to prevail, sha will, doubtless, eventually become a slave State.

Thus the practical illustrations furnished by our history since the passage of the Kan-

Messrs. Rodgers, of Erie, Schell and Mather do not act cordially with the Wood party. Edward Croswell is here and has been in consultation with Wood and Dickinson. The Convention will organize temporarily at noon. The Softs are confident and talk conceiliation. The Woods men insist on selecting all their share of delegates to Charleston themselves. Before 2 o'clock the gallery of the hall was densely crowded with spectators, and a large number of delegates were present, with a number of outsiders.

Immediately on the stroke of 12, Hiram C. Smith, of Monroe, jumped on the floor and moved that Thos. Galvord be temporary shairman of the convention. The vote was instantly put and carried by an immense excitement. The majority of the convention being taken by surprise so terribly as to prevent any attempts at amendment; instantly on the vote being declared, Thos. Galvord, who was on the platform, took the chair and called the convention to order.

A motion was then instantly made to elect Messrs. Spankland, of Cataraugus, and E. Bissall of Schoharie, Secretaries. This was also carried, amidst a perfect panic on the part of the Softs. C. D. Murray, of Cataraugus, immediately took the floor and moved the following resolution:

SEPTEMBER IN NEW YORK .-- The weather thus far in September has been unequalied, and the thousands of visitors now in the city have never had so fine an opportunity t cess. From Maine to the Gulf, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, all the States have sent their migratory population, on business or pleasure bent. The South it represented conspicuously. The travellers from that section have almost monopolized some of the hotels, while at others the Cuban tongue is the prevailing language. The merchants are are fully stocked with goods, and their employees are driven well night distracted by the unusual rush of trade. Broadway in the afternoon is a dense mass of moving life.—

the open air, and of rare and costly goods in the shop windows, makes it a panorama one cannot tire of beholding.

The places of amusement are in full blast, and attended by audiences that utter no complaint of the crowd, and whose frequent applause and complacent faces indicate their entire satisfaction. The re-nomination of Mr. Hastings without opposition is a fine compliment to a gentleman, as an endorsement of all his official acts and as a stern relunke to the unblushing libels of the Madison Patriot.

The balance of the ticket is made up of the very best men. Naught can be sustained against them, either in respect to their attention to Freedom, to their integrity, or to their fitness for the positions for which they are named.—Wood Co. Reporter.

The Republican State ticket. We have not the rime now to discuss the merits of the various condidates. Suffice it to say, that the roters of Wisconsin never had a list of names presented them for their united supply: more unexceptionable than the present one; and we doubt if it could be improved upon by a month's deliberation. THE PURE WINES OF HUNGARY.

STATE ASSAYEN'S OFFICE, 22 Somerset St., Messrs. Figure 3 to Strok. July 1st, 1858.

Messrs. Figure 3 to Grossing Ex.—
Sondemen:—I received from you eight samples of Red and White Hungarian Wines, which, at your reguest, I have submitted to chemical analysis. I send July 1st and they come and the first of the grape. I can consider the products of the grape. I can consider the years that these Wines are pure, and they come aim nothing but the yroducts of the grape. I can consider the years that he wines are but as the solid the grape. I can consider the years and as not so iis they to become sour as the light wines of France.

I exposed my samples forty-girth hours to the nir, in a warm room, without any souring having taken place.

In a narm room, without any souring naring traces in the property character of the red Hungarian Wines is the first of the Red Burguidy of France, and the White Wines (with the exceed the line west or desset wine) are between Hock and assert wine) are between Hock and asserted the somewhat stronger than either of these. I am satisfied that, when known to the public the Hungarian Wines will be greatly in favor, and that they will be much sought for.

Keep the half-weided boughs a-swing To some flitting wild bird's lightness; Through the birdle leaves' rippling green lied the nurple-keys from dropping; On the surard with May showers clean Chest the violets into stopping;

Could you make the rosebuil's lips
Yow to be a buil forever;
From the sudges' wavering tips
Let the pendant dew drop never;
Could you bid the sunrise hour
For a life-time overbrood you;
Could you change the year's full dower
Kor its first faint promise—would you?

Though a bubbling cup we quaff.
From the crystal fount of morning,
When the world is all a laugh
And a welcome without warning,
At 19°s Gana-feast the guest
Lingering on with throat unsated,
Finds a later draught the best;
Miracles—when thou hast waited,

Thought must shade and sun the soul. With its glorious mustions;
Every life-song its a whole
Sweeter for its variations.
Wherefore with your bliss at strife?
"Twas an angel that withstood you,
Could you give your perfect life
For a dream of living—would you?

FACTS FROM HIS DIARY.

BY GEORGE B. MARION.

floated through the heavens, and straggling moonbeams now and then shot earthward through the rifts. Light and shadows make up man's life; for a moment genial blessed-Little thought I of the sky and its emblems as I buttoned my heavy over-coat, for the night was a chilly one, and hastened to warn my lady love. All was eilent as the grave around her home, and no light was to be seen, although it was but ten o'clock.

Advancing cautiously, I, by means of a ladder, soon found myself standing on the kitchen roof. Before me was the window, but, alas, for my highest hopes, as I raised my hand to tap the flying signal, the ladder with which I had gained my elevated position fell, and in its descent broke the bay window. The noise of the shattered panes was sufficient to awaken the household, and as I turned to flee, methought I could hear strange noises made quite a stir, especially when the people

I awoke once in the night with a burning thirst; my brow was heated and aching. The storm without, was raging with maddened fury; occasional glaring itashes of lightning lighting up my room, and securing in strict harmony with the londly waiting wind and deep-toned thunder. I fell asleep again and draamed all sorts of dreams. I visited Satin's domains in company with that much loved gentleman, and examined its different "machines of torture." I ascended "on angel's wings" to the courts of Paradise, and enjoyed a halcyon hour within its elysian bowers talking with friends that have forever left the sphere terrestrial. Then I became a child again, and sported around the cottage door with my brothers and sisters. Visiting our many haunts, our laughter in tune with the musical waterfall, and wandering through the dells plucking the wildwood's flowers. the dells plucking the wildwood's flowers for May-day wreaths. Then I passed through all the varied scenes of my life to the present all the varied scenes of my life to the present time, and awoke.

Strange forms stood around my bed. A stranger held my wrist, and was speaking in whispers to a lady and geattleman, in whom, after close observation, I recognized Mrs. and Mr. Singleton. I knew it must be day; but the blinds were drawn close, so as not to let in a ray of light. Slowly the forms around me grew fainter, and darkness again reigned. I know not how long I lay in this lethargie slumber, before my life and reason returned; a strange humning filled my ears, and opening my eyes I saw a weeping lady withdraw from the room. I felt something like myself again, and as memory resumed its accustomed sway, the truth fashed upon me. The excitement and exposure of the past two weeks had brought on a fever, from which I was recovering. As I lay rumninting on what had passed, the strange man of my former awakening, and who was none else than the awakening, and who was none else than the village doctor, accompanied by my host and hostess, and Hattle Cole, entered the room. hostess, and Hattle Cole, entered the room.—
After asking a number of questions, the doctor gave me permittance to converse with my friends a few minutes only. I asked how long I had been sick, and was somewhat astonished at being answered "four days." At the close of the time allotted they withdrew.

Many days passed away ere I became strong enough to sit up and walk around my room. The fever had silvered a few of my hairs, and slightly altered my appearance. During my convalescence, Hattle and Carrie called twice a day and kept me company an hour at a time; they jested me about the elopement, and, also, gave me the story Hattle had circulated in reference to the "attempted burglary."

Mrs. Singleton informed me that Hattie had tended and watched over me, as I lay between life and death, with the deepest anx iety for my welfare, continually reproaching herself as having been the cause of my sick

It was one morning in the latter part of September that I again appeared in the open air, and patted the head of my noble steed as he pranced up anddown the road. Grow-ing tired of so short a run I rode down to the village to see if the Post-Office contained any letters for me. I received one; it was AGNUFACTURER AND DEALER IN the attempted one had high made me clope with death, and I wished to know whether this one would not kill me outright.

"You shall have to take her, sir," said Carrie, with a tragic air, "she has kept postponing her forced wedding with Mr. Hopkins hoping that when you were sufficiently recovered you would marry her immediately. Mr. Cole will never give his consent as long as Mr. Hopkins remains in town. Hattie is even now making preparations to fly to her aunt's for safety, in order to escape the intended marriage with Jeddediah. You must take her now, or not at all."

"Yery well spoken, Carrie," said I, "and I guess I will follow your advice. At one o'clock I will call here with a carriage and take your fair friend with me."

I loved Hattie truly, and would have sooner died than have broken our engagement, but I thought it would be far better for us both to have her await my return and be married in the village. Carrie, the confidential friend of Hattie, thought differently, and car-companion, and had aided me in whiling away its wearisome hours with fier childish prattle, and intricate puzzles, almost cried her eyes out; but I pacified her by promising to return.

The noon meal was a sober one. Singleton wished me to come back to Plain-ville and form a law-co-partnership with him, as his business was constantly increasing: and held out various other inducements. consented, promising to return in at least two months. two months.

At precisely one o'clock I alighted from the carriage, which had stopped at Mr. Austren's. Bidding a fond farewell to Mr., Mrs. and Carrie Austrn. Hattle and I were rapidly borne toward the residence of Mr. Cole, that borne toward the residence of Mr. Cole, that gentleman and Mr. Hopkins having gone to the railway station to dispose of some wheat. Hattie, under pretext of visiting her aunt's, got the servants to aid her in bringing out her baggage, which I soon had the satisfaction of knowing was safely fastened to the carriage. From there we drove to Mr. Singleton's and took all that was mine aboard, and wishing the folks a "good bye," were off for the railway village, some twenty miles disthe railway village, some twenty miles dis-

Hattie and I were costatic with joy; she at having escaped the terrible marriage ordeal with Mr. Hopkius, and the happiness to come; I, at having found so lovely a prize.—Together we made the time pass away pleasantly. About half a mile from our destination we met Mr. Cote, on his return home; we being effectually screened from his gaze by the curtains, and he, of course, not knowing 'his bird had flown.' Leaving our tranks at the depot, it being but four o'clock and having two hours time, we drove to a hotel, where I paid and dismissed my faithful carriage driver. In an hour Hattie and I stood before a chrygyman, in the parior of the hotel, and were married. Supper came next; a drive to the depot next; and seated in Eattie and I were ecstatic with joy; she at a drive to the depot next; and seated in a railway car, hurrying toward the city, which we reached at midnight, and splendid

On the morrow I called on my agent and arranged, as far as it lay in my power, the urgent business which had called me home; and also, on Mrs. Jones, with whom I boarded before visiting Plainville. She wished me all the joy that earth could afford, and asked whether I would not take rooms for myself and lady, at her fashionable house. Her daughters turned up their pretty noses at me, and threw out a heap of sarcastic words about "gountry girls"; and in order to " and threw out a heap of sarcastic words about "country girls"; and in order to throw them into "vulgar society" I requested Mrs. Jones The night of our to be elopement, was one that suited my anticipations. Heavy clouds floated through the heavens, and straggling me introducing Mrs. Keep to Mrs. Jones and daughters. Instead of a cold reception, we received a warm one, for in Clara Jones my wife found her Seminary mate, and happy ness is ours, and we are happy; but the dark-ening cloud of sorrow soon dampens our toy, and our laughter is turned to weeping.

my hand to hap the fring signal, the ladder with which I had gained my elevated position fell, and in its descent broke the bay window. The noise of the shattered pames was surficient to awaken the household, and as I turned to fee, methought I could hear strange noises and footsteps hurrying to the scene of destruction. To throw myself from the roof, some lifteen feet, to the ground, I thought would be a rash act, and, therefore, embraced the next quickest method by which I could reach terra firms. Seizing the water conductor, I lowered myself into a hogshead mightful of water. I dared not stirr, fearing an arrest as a common burglar; indeed, I had already dampened my hopes enough to suit my wishes. There I sat, up to my neck in water, listening to their various conjectures, as they nailed up the window, as to what had caused the accident; some thought it was the wind, others a burglar.

Their retiring made "music in my heart," for I was dreadfully cold and benumbed, having been immersed some twenty minntes. Waiting sufficiently long cough for quietines to again resume its reign, I emerged from my hiding place. I had scarcely taken three steps when I heard a low growl, and almost instantaneously a dog fastened his teeth in the calf of my leg; but instead of holding on, like a sensible dog, he attempted to play the nasty trick over again. With one bound I stood beyond his reach; nor stood I long, for the confounded dog set to barking with such a zeal as to re-awaken the inmates of the dwelling. In the meantime I had made good use of my legs, and left the house far in the rear. I found Mr. Singleton ready to take us to town. Seeing me alone and in such a plight, he "nearly died laughing."

extraordinary success is simply in the actual truth and value of the article. No one buys the MaGNE-IL PLASTER without becoming its friend. It per form all that is promised, and carries with it its own resommendation. Truly this is a Victory—peac ful and bloodless—but we believe not less giorious than the triumphs of war, with its train of carnage and description.

The MAGNETIC FLASTER is undoubtedly the Greatest Strengthener and Pain Destroyer that Science has yet discovered. If you put this Planter anywhere, if Pain is there, the Planter will stick there until the Pain has vanished. The Planter magnetises the Pain away, and PAIN UANNOT EXIST WHERE THIS PLASTER IS APPLIED.

Rheumatism, Lamenes, Stiffness, Weakness, Dobil-ty, New Yousness, Neuralgis, Dyspepsia, Coughs and Dids, Pains and Aches of every kind, are IMM EDI-ATELY RELIEVED, and, with a titule patience, PER-MANENTAY CURED, by themagical influence of the MAGNETIC PLASTER. It is the simplest, surest, ansfest, pleasantest and cheapesis remedy in existence.

Its application is universal—equally to the strong man, the delicate woman, and the feeble infant. Its se is agreeable, and without annoyance or trou le. Its price is within reach or all—rich or poor; all may have it, and all should have it who are sick, and suffering it any way.

FARMERS and PLANTERS should siways be supplied with the MAGNETIC PLASTER. It will be the
